

BRUSH STROKES AND STORIES

by: SnickerDoodle Art

“Although book reading is important as a stand-alone instructional tool for early childhood educators, linking special or themed books to art activities can increase the benefits of literary based lessons. Integrating book reading with a similarly themed art project can help the young child to further understand the narrative, increase representational thought, and improve the fine motor skills that are necessary for printing and later writing.” References: Early Beginnings: Early Literacy Knowledge and Instruction, National Institute for Literacy. U.S. Government Printing Office, 2009.

WE BRING THE ART AND STORIES TO YOU!!
(with a minimum of 15 kids paid for)

We would love to bring our brush strokes and stories program to your preschool, kindergarten, daycare, church, moms group, etc. Our instructor will read 2 stories to the children, sing a song and paint a small (7") wood shape that coordinates with the theme. Cost is $7 plus tax per child.
